The Samburu National Reserve

The Samburu National Reserve is located on the banks of the Ewaso Nyiro river which flows through Doum palm groves and thick riverine forests and provides water without which the game in the reserve could not survive in this arid country. There is a wide variety of animal and bird life to be seen in Samburu. Several species are considered unique to the region.

Elephant Bedroom Camp

At Samburu. A small, intimate and exclusive camp. Elephant Bedroom is rustic, elegant and close to nature yet maintaining its authenticity without compromising on any of the luxuries expected from top-rated camps. The 12 spacious tents have rustic and colourful African touches, offering all the comforts you would need including hot and cold running water, electricity (and complimentary herbal shower and bath products).

Lake Nakuru

Lake Nakuru attracts huge flocks of visiting greater and lesser flamingos, which feed on the crustacean and insect larvae as well as the lakes' suspended blue-green algae. As well as its fabulous bird life Lake Nakuru National Park has an area fenced off as a sanctuary to protect Rothschild giraffes and black and white rhinoceros. Waterbuck are also very common and both the Kenyan species are found here. Among the predators are lion, cheetah and leopard, the latter being seen much more frequently in recent times.

Flamingo Hill Camp

In the Lake Nakuru National Park. Where simplicity and understated elegance meet nature to create the perfect place from which to begin your journey into Africa. Flamingo Hill Camp has only 25 tents, all of which are furnished with four poster beds, mosquito nets, en-suite bathrooms and a private verandah over-looking the plains.

Masai Mara Wildlife Reserve

The Masai Mara is known as the "Seventh Natural Wonder of the World" due to the great wildebeest migration, which sees millions of wildebeest, along with herds of zebra and gazelle followed by the big cats, pour into the Reserve each year following the rains. The Mara is regarded as Kenya's finest wildlife reserve; everything about this reserve is outstanding: the wildlife is abundant and the gentle rolling grasslands ensure that animals are never out of sight. Birds, are prolific, well over 450 species have been recorded.

Ilkeliani Camp

Ilkeliani is a permanent luxury tented camp, centrally located in the Masai Mara. Camp environs are preserved so as to feel as close as possible to nature. Ilkeliani is the name given to the age group of the young Masai warrior. The camp consists of only 17 tents each commanding views of the plains and the wildlife action throughout the day.
